

The Wallace Family

of Moore County, NC

Newly published book on Moore County, NC Genealogy and History!

The Families of Northern Moore County: Abstract of Miscellaneous and Rare Records, Volume II 1831-1929

Moore County, NC has long been a challenging place to do genealogical research, even more so if your family lived in Northern Moore County. Due to the immense loss of records in the 1889 Moore County courthouse fire combined with Northern Moore's large mix of Scotch-Irish, German, Swiss, English and other settlers who often kept to themselves and left very little evidence behind – genealogical and historical research on these families generally leaves researchers with no shortage of dead ends, brick walls and ancestors who disappear into genealogical black holes.

With this series, Morgan Jackson (www.MooreCountyWallaces.com) seeks to shine a light on these families and piece together the records that survived the fire and the test of time. Utilizing over thirty years of personal research and a multitude of information from numerous sources, he abstracts rare and hard to find land grants, deeds, church records, school records, wills, estates, tax lists, pension records, family bibles, newspaper accounts and court records. This second volume abstracts thousands of these records in a timeline format dating from 1831-1929 including several hundred images and hard to find maps. A full name index includes over 11,000 individuals and over 900 place names.

70, to Mrs. Milton, relict of

THE FAMILIES OF NORTHERN MOORE COUNTY:

ABSTRACT OF MISCELLANEOUS AND RARE RECORDS VOLUME II 1831-1929

Researched and Compiled by Morgan Jackson
www.MooreCountyWallaces.com

Mill Stones.—Having lately purchased all the Mill Stone Quarries formerly owned by the late Wm. Danily, Esq; among which is the one known and distinguished as the "Blue Girl." I am now prepared to furnish at short notice, and to Review of Volume I "A phenomenal effort in researching the families of Northern Moore County and presenting detailed records of these families methodically and accurately, as well as professionally, with indexing and cross-indexing of individuals. Clear maps and images of records are supplemented well by text. The results is an interesting compilation of history through genealogy - a valuable resource for descendants of the families recorded therein and residents of Moore County." - NC Society of Historians

Search for your ancestors in the online index

$42 - purchase online